Dear Mr. Smith,

I am very enthusiastic to apply for the Fall Internship position at The Daily Caller. Recently, I completed my Certificate in Entrepreneurship along with my Journalism degree, and am especially interested in putting my skills to good use with a start up organization. In addition, my main interests in journalism are in political reporting. I have been commended for being extremely motivated and hard working and enjoy tasks that are especially challenging.

My passion for the journalism field began in high school when I worked on the school newspaper reporting weekly articles on school policies and procedures. I continued working for one of the University of Wisconsin-Madison school newspapers where I won the Milwaukee Press Club Award. This was a great honor to be recognized from such a prestigious organization.

Throughout my time in college, I involved myself in various organizations honing my writing, editing, reporting skills and also coordinating various events. It taught me the importance of being detail oriented, hard working, innovative, creative and the ability to multi-task. In order to be successful in all of these endeavors, having excellent verbal and written skills has allowed me to excel.

I have been following the Daily Caller since its inception and have been very impressed with the content they produce. Since I was younger, I have been following Tucker Carson's career on Fox News. Working at a start up company is an exciting venture where I would be able to contribute in various ways and learn from some of the best in the industry.

Included in my application are my resume and samples of some of my work including the article that I wrote where I received the Milwaukee Press Club Award. My home is in Silver Springs, MD and I will be returning in mid August.

Thank you in advance for your consideration and I am very excited to meet with you and members from The Daily Caller.

Sincerely,

Joseph Nafziger

The Daily Caller is seeking Fall 2015 interns who are interested in a fast-paced, exciting workplace that values motivation and innovation. We are looking for bright and focused individuals who can work within deadlines and are dedicated to the integrity and growth of the publication.

The Daily Caller, a 24-hour online news publication founded by Tucker Carlson and Neil Patel, is seeking a journalism intern who is interested in a fast-paced, exciting workplace that values motivation and innovation. As an intern at the Daily Caller, you will be involved with all facets of the 24-hour news publication, from aggregating articles to producing original pieces. Interns will also be assigned work by the staff as needed which will focus on electronic research, but could encompass other duties as well. As a Journalism Intern, you will work closely with the Editorial Staff to monitor and produce original content.

Because we are a start-up, every aspect of our company is very hands on. After the introduction period, we ask that you express which tasks you prefer and capitalize on them. Whether that is writings stories, creating movies, posting slide-shows, working with our business department to analyze statistics and improve sales, or whatever that may be, we are all ears and we want to make sure you have the opportunity to explore all your interests.

Qualifications

Interns should be:

- hard working and motivated
- knowledgeable about politics and contain at least one year of journalism experience
- able to successfully handle multiple tasks at once
- have exceptional verbal and written communication skills
- creative and resourceful
- detail-oriented

We ask that you work 10–15 hours a week, and because we are open 24 hours, we have several different shifts to work with your schedule.

Experience with computers, including WordPress, is a plus.

Please send a resume and cover letter to interns@dailycaller.com.

Please note, the internship is unpaid.
